

DRIVEN WOLF HUNT

Location: St. Petersburg, Karelia, 200-300 miles from St. Petersburg

Season dates: January 25-March 15

Hunting method: Traditional driven flagged hunt

Accommodations: Fully equipped hunting lodge

Group size: 4-8

Price: $2500

Additional day of hunting: $300

Trophy fee: wolf $600, lynx $4000, wolverine $1500

Included in the price:

Reception and assistance in St. Petersburg airport; Accommodation in the hunting area;

Meals and soft drinks during the hunt; Roundtrip ground transportation airport-hunting area and transportation during the hunt; Services of several guides; Services of 1 interpreter in a camp; Field trophy preparation; Gun permit; Invitation letter and voucher.

Not included in the price:

Insurance of any kind; International and domestic travel before and after the hunt; Preserving, shipping or transporting of trophies from Russia; Cost of sightseeing tours; Ground transportation unrelated to hunting; Gratuities; Trophy fee; CITES permits.

Itinerary

Day 1: Arrival to St. Petersburg and transfer to the hunting lodge.

Day 2-8: 7 days of hunting

Day 8-9: Return to St. Petersburg for a flight home.

Details: The number of wolves in the St. Petersburg region and Karelia has been increasing for the past two decades despite active hunting, which has a huge adverse impact on the number of moose and wild boar in this part of Russia. We offer a traditional driven flagged wolf hunt. This requires locating a pack, consisting of 3 to 6 animals, surrounding it with a rope approximately 3.5-5 miles (5-8 km) long with a narrow opening where shooters are located, and pushing wolves towards the shooting line. Shots are taken from a short distance, usually using 12 gauge shotguns loaded with buckshot. Drives are organized every other day. Hunters should be in good physical condition, dressed in layers and wearing snow camo suites. Additionally, hunters can choose to hunt lynx or wolverine with the dogs.

